PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE
UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE FIFTH CIRCUIT

Petitioner respectfully petitions for a writ of certiorari to review a judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, and for reason therefor respectfully shows the following:

JUDGMENT AND OPINION BELOW

The judgment sought to be reviewed was entered November 22, 1946, by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit in the case of Amy H. Varnedoe v. Marion H. Allen, Collector of Internal Revenue. The opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals commences on Page 45 of the record and the dissenting opinion on Page 48.

The judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment of the District Court of the United States for the Middle District of Georgia in favor of respondent, Marion H.

Allen, Collector of Internal Revenue (R. 39). The Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law of the District Court commence on Page 35 of the record. There was no opinion rendered by said court. The judgment of the District Court will be found on Page 39 of the record.

QUESTION PRESENTED

Whether the payment of a pension by the Firemen's Pension Fund of the City of Atlanta to the widow of a deceased fireman of the City of Atlanta constitutes taxable income to such widow, under Section 22(a) of the Internal Revenue Code.

It is petitioner's contention that such payment is not taxable income under the authority of Section 19.22(a)(2) of Regulation 103, and Section 29.22(a)-2 of Regulation 111, the relative portion of which provides:

REASONS RELIED ON FOR ALLOWANCE OF WRIT

The Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit has decided an important question of Federal law which heretofore has never been decided or settled, but which should be settled by this court. Other than the decision alleged to be erroneous in this petition, there is no decision of any District Court, Circuit Court of Appeals, Tax Court, or this court deciding that a pension is or is not taxable income within the meaning of the Federal Revenue Law. This is the first decision of any court, Federal or State, upon the taxable status of a pension. The fact that the Bureau of Internal Revenue has never heretofore sought to tax a pension accounts for the absence of litigation on the question.

The question is of great importance because other similar cases will arise, no doubt in large numbers, inasmuch as there are pension statutes in various large cities, which statutes apply to those engaged in hazardous occupations such as fireman and policeman. Attached to petitioner's brief is Appendix A which sets out a list of cases showing the states where such legislation has been enacted. The case is important for other reasons in that it might conceivably be a precedent with reference to the payment of social security received by a widow or wife of an employee, which widow or wife, although receiving the benefits of social security, had never rendered any services to any employer.

Petitioner alleges that the question is important nationwide particularly on account of the fact that up to 1942 the Bureau of Internal Revenue construed the receipt of such a pension as non-taxable income. It is believed that the reversal of this position will necessarily result in legal contests which will find their way into the various Federal Courts, and it is believed that a decision on the question by this court, settling the question once and for all will eliminate those contests.

STATEMENT OF CASE

There is no dispute as to the facts. The case was tried under an agreed statement of facts (R.31). In substance that stipulation showed that Amy H. Varnedoe was the widow of Lewis Carroll Varnedoe, who during his lifetime was a captain in the Fire Department of the City of Atlanta, Georgia. Lewis Carroll Varnedoe died at the age of 70 on December 20, 1931, while a member of the Fire Department of the City of Atlanta, Georgia, after having rendered 42 years of service with the Fire Department of the City of Atlanta.

That Amy H. Varnedoe, who is 71 years of age, commenced receiving payments from the Trustees of the Firemen's Pension Fund of the City of Atlanta at the rate of $100 per month, beginning January 1, 1932, immediately following her husband's death, and has continuously received these payments since said date. Said payments were made to her pursuant to an act of the General Assembly of the State of Georgia, approved August 13, 1924, as amended by acts approved August 7, 1925, August 24, 1931, and March 28, 1935. Copies of these acts are set out in Appendix B to petitioner's brief. That Amy H. Varnedoe has never at any time been employed by or rendered services to the City of Atlanta, Georgia, and has never paid or given any consideration whatsoever in exchange for the payments she has received from the Trustees of the Firemen's Pension Fund of the City of Atlanta by and under any of the foregoing acts of the General Assembly of the State of Georgia.

That the salary of Lewis Carroll Varnedoe, received from the City of Atlanta, Georgia, from 1924 to the date of his death, was $200 per month, and that during said period, deductions were made from his salary as provided for in the above referred to acts of the General Assembly of the State of Georgia.

The respondent, Collector of Internal Revenue, required Amy H. Varnedoe to pay Federal income tax for the years 1941, 1943 and 1944, after which payment a claim for refund was duly filed, and subsequent thereto a suit filed in the District Court to recover said payments. No tax for the year 1942 was involved because under the Current Tax Payment act of 1943 all income taxes for 1942 were extinguished, except that part thereof which was included in the computation of the 1943 tax.

CERTIFICATION OF ERRORS

The Circuit Court of Appeals erred in ruling:

- (1) That payments which petitioner received from the Trustees of the Firemen's Pension Fund of the City of Atlanta were income to her as compensation for services rendered within the meaning of Section 22(a) of the Internal Revenue Code.

(2) That the language, "However, so-called pensions awarded by one to whom no services have been rendered are mere gifts or gratuities and are not taxable," which is a part of Section 29.22(a)-2 of Treasury Regulation 111 interpreting Section 22(a) of the Revenue Code, refers to services rendered to the payor rather than by the payee as contended by petitioner.

(3) That even if such clause should be construed as referring to services rendered to the payor the Circuit Court of Appeals erred because the record in this case shows that the payor was the Board of Trustees of the Firemen's Pension Fund of the City of Atlanta, which is the legal entity created by the legislative acts under which said pension was paid to petitioner.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated it is respectfully urged that the writ of certiorari be granted.

Petitioner files simultaneous with the filing of this petition a brief in support thereof.

BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF PETITION FOR CERTIORARI

JURISDICTION

The jurisdiction of the court is based on Section 240 of the Judicial Code as amended by the act of February 13, 1925 (Title 28 U.S.C.A. Section 347).

REVENUE ACT AND REGULATION INVOLVED

Section 22(a) of the Internal Revenue Code provides as follows:

GENERAL DEFINITION.—"Gross income" includes gains, profits, and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service (including personal service as an officer or employee of a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing), of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses, commerce, or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income derived from any source whatever. In the case of Presidents of the United States and judges of courts of the United States taking office after June 6, 1932, the compensation received as such shall be included in gross income; and all Acts fixing the compensation of such Presidents and judges are hereby amended accordingly. In the case of judges of courts of the United States who took office on or before June 6, 1932, the compensation received as such shall be included in gross income.

The only portion of the aforecited Section of the Internal Revenue Code under which the payments received by appellant could under any conceivable theory be included in gross income is that portion which provides:

“Gross income includes * * * income derived from * * * compensation for personal service * * *”.

It was under this portion of Section 22(a) that counsel for the respondent contended, and the trial judge held, that the payments received by petitioner were taxable.

Section 29.22(a)-2 of Treasury Regulation 111 in part is as follows:

Compensation for Personal Services.—Commissions paid salesmen, compensation for services on the basis of a percentage of profits, commissions on insurance premiums, tips, pay of persons in the military or naval forces of the United States, retired pay of Federal and other officers, and pensions or retiring allowances paid by the United States (unless expressly exempt) or by private persons are income to the recipients; as are also marriage fees, baptismal offerings, sums paid for saying masses for the dead, and other contributions received by a clergyman, evangelist, or religious worker for services rendered. However, so-called pensions awarded by one to whom no services have been rendered are mere gifts or gratuities and are not taxable. (Italic ours).

This ruling also appears in Section 19.22(a)-(2) of Regulation 103.

The only portion of the aforesaid regulation applicable to this case is that which reads as follows:

Unquestionably the money with which we are now dealing was paid as a pension. The language used by the legislature of the State of Georgia in the statutes here involved discloses an obvious intention to pay a "pension" as distinguished from an intention to classify the payment as "compensation." A copy of the legislative acts under consideration is attached to this brief as appendix B. The court's attention is called to the caption of the acts which denominates the payments as "pensions." Section 1 of the act of 1924 provides " there shall be raised and established funds for the aid, relief and pension of employees of paid fire departments . . . ". Other sections of the act and amendments thereto refer to "pensions" being paid to members of fire departments in certain cities where they are killed or disabled in line of duty, and further provides for the payment of such pension to the widows of such firemen under certain conditions.

This court in the case of Bogardus v. Commissioner, 302 U. S. Page 34, stated that in the consideration of questions such as the one here involved, the intention with which the payment was made is the controlling factor. This court stated that a gift is none the less a gift because inspired by gratitude for the past faithful service of the recipient.

It seems to us that the legislative intent could have been nothing other than to create what in strict terms would be called a "pension" statute. An analysis of the various cases dealing with pension laws for firemen and policemen in large municipalities indicates the philosophy back of these so-called pension statutes. There is involved a group of workmen who do not have the advantages of the state workmen's compensation law. They are not subject to the social security laws. They are engaged in a hazardous occupation and one which will not permit them to obtain life and accident insurance at the rates normally paid by the average working class. Added to this, it can be found as an historical fact that employees in this class are not well paid. The record in this case shows that the deceased husband of the petitioner was employed by the City of Atlanta as a fireman for a period of 42 years during which time he was never paid in excess of $200 per month. When these facts are considered in the light of the legislative acts under consideration, we say in all confidence that the only intention which the legislature of Georgia had in mind when these statutes were passed was to create a pension in its strictest sense. A pension can be given to an employee in recognition of his long and faithful service, but not from a strict legal sense in consideration thereof. See Dickey v. Jackson, 181 Iowa 1155, 1160, (165 N.W. 387). The Supreme Court of Georgia in DeWitt v. Richmond County, 192 Ga. 770, (16 S.E. 2d 579), held to this exact effect. The DeWitt case was referred to by Circuit Judge Waller who rendered a dissenting opinion in the decision now complained of.

The court below in the majority opinion seems to have based its decision on a most peculiar interpretation of the last sentence of Section 29.22(a)-2 of Treasury Regulation 111, which sentence reads as follows:

The majority opinion points out that what was referred to by this sentence was services rendered by anyone, not necessarily the one receiving the so-called pension. It is inconceivable to us how such an interpretation could be correctly drawn from such language. It seems to us clearly that the meaning of such language is that where a pension is received by one who has rendered no services it is not taxable income. The record in this case shows that petitioner was the widow of a deceased fireman and that she never rendered any services to anyone. The payment to her, therefore, was purely a result of her being the widow of a person who devoted his entire business life to one employer constantly and faithfully, and at a rate of compensation which did not permit him to provide for himself or for her during their aging years. The majority opinion in the court below contains certain language used in the brief of opposing counsel in the court below. It seems to have been an afterthought by such counsel for the Bureau of Internal Revenue because we here quote its interpretation of this particular sentence of Treasury Regulation 111 (of the section heretofore referred to), which interpretation was followed for many years. That interpretation will be found on Pages 34 and 35 of the record, which is a letter from respondent interpreting this very pension statute. It is as follows:

"Reference is made to your conversation with Mr. McClatchey relative to the taxable status for Federal income tax purposes of the income which you received from the Pension Fund of the City of Atlanta.

"The facts seem to disclose that you derive this income from the Pension Fund as the widow of Mr. Cody, former Chief of the Atlanta Fire Department, and that the income is not derived because of any personal service that you have performed as an employee of the City.

"Section 19.22(a)-2 of the Internal Revenue Code reads in part: 'However, so-called pensions awarded by one to whom no services have been rendered are mere gifts or gratuities and are non-taxable.'

"In view of this provision of the Code, it is my opinion that the income you derived from the Pension Fund of the City of Atlanta is exempt from Federal income tax and does not therefore have to be reported by you on a Federal income tax return.

"Trusting that the desired information has been furnished, I am

Yours very truly,

(Sgd.) MARION H. ALLEN, Collector."

Another error made by the court below in the interpretation of the statutes here involved will be found in the majority opinion wherein it is assumed that the City of Atlanta made these payments direct to the pensioner. This is not correct, and a reference to the pension statutes here involved will clearly show that the statutes created what was known as a Board of Trustees whose duty it was to manage the fund and pay the pensions. (See Statutes which are an appendix to this brief) Section 6 of the legislative act of 1924 is as follows:

"Be it further enacted that there is hereby established, to serve without pay, a board of trustees whose duties it shall be to manage said funds which shall be kept by the City Treasurer of such cities as a separate fund and covered by his bond as such. The board of trustees shall consist of the city treasurer, the city comptroller, the chief of the fire department and two members of the fire department to be elected by the members of said department in active service on the first Monday in September every year after the passage of this Act. These two members of the department to serve one year and until their successors are elected. The city comptroller, city treasurer and chief of the fire department to be permanent members of the board."

A reference to Sections 9 and 10 of the act of 1924 will indicate where the money comes from with which said pensions are paid, no part of which is actually paid by the City of Atlanta. The pension fund is derived from a tax of one per cent (1%) (Later changed to 2%) on the salaries of the firemen and from an additional tax on the collection of fire insurance premiums in the particular city involved. It was not until 1931 that the legislative act was amended to provide that if any deficit occurred in this fund the city would be required to pay such deficit to the fund (and not direct to a pensioner). It therefore clearly appears that the money paid to petitioner which is the subject matter of this litigation was paid by the Board of Trustees of the Firemen's Pension Fund of the City of Atlanta, and not by the City of Atlanta itself, although a part of said fund may have been contributed by the city. The court below therefore in its majority opinion did not properly apply the last sentence of Section 29.22(a)-2 of Regulation 111 when it stated that the payor was the one to whom the services must be rendered, and that it was immaterial who rendered the services. The payor in this case was the Board of Trustees of the Firemen's Pension Fund of the City of Atlanta, and no service was ever rendered to that Board by the deceased husband of petitioner, and under these circumstances the decision of the court below is erroneous.

This court in Brewster v. Gage, 50 S.C. 115, (280 U.S. 327), stated that it was more practical to follow the interpretation placed upon a statute or regulation by whatever administrative officer was charged with the enforcement of the same, and that such an interpretation by the officials in charge ought not be disturbed except for very weighty reasons.

For many years the Bureau of Internal Revenue interpreted the revenue law to mean that a pension such as the one now under consideration was not taxable income when received by one who rendered no services. There is no weighty reason to disturb this interpretation nor has the Respondent in this case shown any such reason to exist. No suggestion is made that one exists. Apparently Congress has been satisfied for many years with the interpretation placed upon such section in that it has repeatedly reenacted the tax act in the light of the construction placed upon it by the administrative department. (See Helvering v. R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 306 U.S. 110).

In conclusion we wish to state that counsel for the Respondent stated in the court below that one of the reasons why payment of this pension should be declared taxable income was that the Supreme Court of Georgia in the case of Trotzler v. McElroy, et al, Trustees, 182 Ga. 719, held that after the right to receive said pension accrued the pensioner had a vested right, which was in the nature of a contract created by statute. Opposing counsel argued that if it arose by reason of a contract it could not be considered a pension. Our answer to this is that under the federal social security law a widow is entitled to certain payments after the death of her husband, even though she has never rendered any services to anyone. This payment is a vested right and is payable to her as a result of her husband's salary being taxed and her husband's employer being taxed for that purpose. It is a contract created by statute in which she has a vested right. The Bureau of Internal Revenue has never up to this time taken the position that such a payment would be taxable income. Possibly it will do so now but such we feel sure was never the intent of Congress. Another illustration which is not entirely similar, but may be of some importance is that of where a corporation after the death of an employee pays to the widow of such employee the salary which the employee would have earned during the remaining portion of the year. This is a very common practice among large and successful corporations. The Bureau of Internal Revenue has never considered such payment to the widow as taxable income to her. See O.D. 1017 (5 CB 101). This is true even though the corporation is given the benefit of a deductible expense with reference to such payment. See Regulation 29.23(a)-9.

COPIES OF LEGISLATIVE ACTS.

An Act of the General Assembly of the State of Georgia, approved August 13, 1924, (Ga. Laws 1924, pages 167-173):

PENSIONS FOR FIREMEN IN CERTAIN CITIES; PAYMENTS IN CASE OF ACCIDENT, DEATH, ETC.

No. 454.

An Act to provide that cities having a population of more than one hundred and fifty thousand (150,000) by the United States census of 1920 or any subsequent census shall furnish aid, relief and pensions to members of paid fire departments now in active service, and whose names are on the pay roll of such department and to future members, and their dependents in specified cases. To provide how such members who have served twenty-five years may be retired for life on half pay. To provide how such members shall be paid in case of total disability resulting from such service, and how such total disability may be determined. To provide for relief in case of sickness or accident resulting from such service. To provide for the relief of dependents and to provide for widows and children of deceased pensioners to be paid in case of death of any such member resulting from said service. To provide that such cities shall levy tax of one (1%) per centum on the salaries of such members in active service and on pay roll and to future members to raise in part the funds to pay such aids, reliefs and pensions, collectible monthly. To provide that such cities shall use one-fifth (1-5) of the tax collected on fire and lightning insurance companies or associations from the premiums thereof on property situated within the corporate limits of such cities; to pay such aid, relief and pensions. To provide that such cities shall levy a tax of one and one-fourth ($1\frac{1}{4}$) per centum on the premiums of such fire and lightning insurance companies on property situated within the corporate limits of such cities. To provide that one and one-fourth ($1\frac{1}{4}$) per centum shall be the limit which such cities shall be allowed to tax the premiums of such fire and lightning insurance companies or associations on premiums collected on property situated in the corporate limits of such cities. To provide how such funds shall be collected, deposited and managed for the members of such fire departments now in active service and whose names are on the pay roll of such departments and for future members. To create a board of trustees and provide for their selection and election, to manage, deposit, disburse upon order and invest said funds which shall be raised by the one (1) per centum tax on the salaries of members now in active service and future members, and one-fifth (1-5) of the premium tax on fire and lightning insurance taxes. To provide that this Act shall not repeal nor in any wise affect any benefit or pension now being paid to those who were receiving the same prior to the passage of this Act; and that this Act shall not apply to those receiving pensions or benefits prior to the passage of this Act. To provide that such board of trustees shall make all necessary rules for carrying out the terms of this Act. To provide that in case there shall at any time be on hand less funds than are needed, the actual funds shall be prorated among the beneficiaries. To provide that none of the funds mentioned shall be subject to attachment, garnishment, judgment; nor shall they be assignable; but shall be paid in cash to the beneficiary if so requested by him or her. To provide that if any part of this Act shall be held unconstitutional, the remainder of this Act shall remain in force taken in connection with existing laws. To provide that this Act shall not affect nor be affected by any workmen's compensation act or other similar laws. To repeal conflicting laws, and for other purposes.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Georgia, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same, that from and after the passage of this Act there shall be raised and established funds for the aid, relief and pension of members of paid fire departments who are in active service at the time of the passage of this Act and whose names are on the pay roll of such departments and future members of such departments, and their dependents in all cities in Georgia having a population of more than one hundred and fifty thousand (150,000) by the United States census of 1920 or any subsequent census of the United States.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted that any member of such fire department who is in active service at the time of the passage of this Act and whose name is on the payroll, and future members, may as a matter of right, retire from active service, provided he shall have served twenty-five (25) years in active service at the time of his retirement.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted that any member of such department who is in active service at the time of the passage of this Act and whose name is on the pay roll and future members who shall be injured or whose health shall become permanently impaired to such an extent as to render him totally disabled as a result of such service shall upon application be retired. Should the board of trustees refuse to grant an order of retirement, the applicant shall select a physician, the board shall select a physician, and the two physicians so selected shall select a third. These three shall examine the applicant and determine whether he is totally disabled and the decision of a majority of these physicians shall be final on the question.

Sec. 4. When such member shall retire as a matter of right he shall be paid one-half of the salary he was receiving at the time of his retirement, for the rest of his life, to be paid monthly. In case of death of a pensioner his widow and children shall draw his pension as herein provided in case of death of member of such department.

Sec. 5. When such member shall be retired for total disability he shall be paid one-half of the salary he was receiving at the time of his retirement for the rest of his life, to be paid monthly, but this Act shall not affect the salary of a member in active service, except the tax of one (1) per cent thereon.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted that there is hereby established, to serve without pay, a board of trustees whose duties it shall be to manage said funds which shall be kept by the City Treasurer of such cities as a separate fund and covered by his bond as such. The board of trustees shall consist of the city treasurer, the city comptroller, the chief of the fire department and two members of the fire department to be elected by the members of said department in active service on the first Monday in September every year after the passage of this Act. These two members of the department to serve one year and until their successors are elected. The city comptroller, city treasurer and chief of the fire department to be permanent members of the board.

Sec. 7. This board shall make all rules for the payment of said funds to those entitled to receive the same. It shall have its first meeting on Wednesday following the first Tuesday in September after the passage of this Act and organize by electing a chairman, a vice-chairman who shall serve when the chairman is absent, and a secretary. The chairman shall sign all vouchers for the disbursements of the fund and his written order shall fully protect the city treasurer in the payment of the same. A majority of the board shall control on all questions.

Sec. 8. The board shall make its own rules as to times and places of meetings.

Sec. 9. A tax of one (1) per centum shall be levied on the salaries of all members in active service at the time of the passage of this Act monthly; and the city treasurer shall retain that amount from their salaries.

Sec. 10. A tax of one and one-fourth ($1\frac{1}{4}$) per centum shall be levied against the premiums of all fire and lightning insurance companies or associations on property situated within the corporate limits of such cities, and returns by said companies or associations made and tax collected as now provided by ordinance in such cities, to be collected from and after passage of this Act. One-fifth (1-5) of the tax provided in this section shall go to aid, relief, and pension funds provided in this Act.

Sec. 11. The city treasurer shall keep separate and apart from other monies in his possession the funds raised in Sections 9 and 10 hereof for the sole uses mentioned in this Act, and subject to the orders of said board of trustees.

Sec. 12. The said city tax on insurance premiums on property situated in the corporate limits of such cities shall be and is hereby limited to one and one-fourth ($1\frac{1}{4}$) per centum.

Sec. 13. The board of trustees shall formulate rules for taking care of members in active service at the time of the passage of this Act while temporarily sick or hurt, and paying the expense thereof. The board of trustees shall formulate rules for paying the pension of a member of the department who loses his life in the service to his widow till she dies or remarries; and for paying to widow and children pension of deceased pensioner; and for paying the pension of such deceased fireman to his orphan children till they reach the age of sixteen; provided the total payments to widow and orphan or orphans shall not exceed one-half the pay of such deceased fireman. The trustees shall keep a strict account of the disbursements and receipts of all funds which shall be open at all times to public inspection.

Sec. 14. In case a member has served twenty-five years does not desire to retire, and the board of trustees deem such
